Art in the Atrium, Franklin Crossing

550 NW Franklin

Paintings by inmates of Oregon correctional institutions to benefit the Ugandan orphan children of Otino Waa Children's Village. The exhibit continues through January 1, 2017.

In 2002, Carol and Bob Higgins, former Bend school teachers and then missionaries, responded to pleas for the rescue of orphans from the continuing violence of the Lord's Revolutionary Army (LRA). The Higgins, assisted by the local community, sheltered and aided 78 orphans of the northern Ugandan conflict in Lira, Uganda, now home to the village.

Recognizing the need for on-going care for the rescued orphans, the Higgins created Otino Waa Children's Village in 2003. Approximately 300 children now receive food, clothing, housing, education and spiritual support with the assistance of Bridget and Steve Hurry, in-country directors, plus native Ugandans, dedicated employees, volunteers, and worldwide beneficiaries. In residence, the children attend primary, secondary and vocational school, with some graduates continuing to higher education or skilled work.

Resting Tiger by an Inmate of Snake River Correctional Institute

Visions of Hope (VOH) directed by Dale and Sandy Russell in Bend, supports Otino Waa by joining its children and Oregon correctional institution inmates. In its seventh year, VOH, a volunteer organization, sells art generously created and offered by inmates statewide as a fund raiser for the village children. Franklin Crossing, during December, exhibits and sells this art with all proceeds benefiting the children. Unique in the world, Visions of Hope exemplifies the impact of individuals on lives of others. As noted by Dale Russel, "In a gentle way, art can change the world." In 1832, JMW Turner famously strode into the Royal Academy and with one deft stroke of red paint, catapulted his painting above the rest of the exhibit. According to his rival, John Constable, (Turner) has been here and fired a gun."

Mixed monotype by Patricia Clark

Turner's tale provided inspiration for A6's December exhibit, Red. Showcasing original prints by A6 member artists, the show is a combination of dense, saturated color studies and exercises in restraint. As A6 founder Patricia Clark noted, "In art, red is a color caution...but at times a surprise and delight, when it works." Juried by Kiel Fletcher of OSU-Cascades art department, Red is an interesting exploration of the power and properties of color.

According to Executive Director Dawn Boone, "A6's artist members work in a wide range of printmaking processes, so the exhibit reflects this variety." Red includes etchings, collagraphs, monotypes and woodcuts. Several new and long-standing A6 members are represented in the exhibit: Paula Bullwinkle, Sharon Campbell, Patricia Clark, Jean Harkin, Gin Laughery, Helen Loeffler, Jane Quale, Adell Shetterly, Jenny Smith, Sue Trewartha-Papanic, and Julie

Oxford Hotel

10 NW Minnesota Ave., 541-382-8436

Susan Busik's vivid and polychromatic acrylic paintings through the New Year celebration, closing January 2. The artist will be present at the champagne opening on First Friday.

Busik's whimsical and bold paintings celebrate her Latina heritage with images of over-scale Madonna's and forests glowing with a full moon, lighting darting hummingbirds. The art also features boldly hued flowers and traditional colorful, spiraling patterns of intricate dots representing spiritual energy surrounding all creation.

Busik, largely a self-taught artist, painstakingly learned the complexity of folk art design and color. Her perseverance yielded a fearless painter, joyously sharing her history with admirers.

The hotel lobby remains open during all hours. Billye Turner, art consultant, coordinates the Oxford Hotel exhibition schedule with information at billyeturner@bendnet.com.

www.redchairgallerybend.com

During December, Red Chair Gallery is donating ten percent of sales to The Bethlehem Inn, an organization that provides temporary shelter to those experiencing homelessness. Please come help make this, the fifth year of donating to The Inn, the best year so far!

During December featuring two local artists and a smattering of Red Chair painters.

Stephanie Stanley will debut her new Collection entitled Home. The collection shows a fresh colorful new design for table runners, and has been two years in the planning and making. The new work uses hand stitching, plying, color work and embellishment techniques such as beadwork to create new colorful table runners to make you smile. Stephanie has been a weaver for more than 25 years and is able to employ many techniques, tools and processes to create just

Her popular scarves, shawls and ponchos will be available as well.

Helen Bommarito believes that one's daily life is enriched by using objects that are artistic and made by human hand. She creates one-of-a-kind mugs, bowls, vases, and even tea spoons using fine porcelain clay and decorates them with etched designs or hand drawn whimsical figures. Her inspiration may come from the complex simplicity of Japanese arts and philosophy, where a seemingly simple form or gesture is the distillation of much thought and experience. Or, it may come from the young children she teaches. In her jewelry, natural stones, pearls, crystals, handmade porcelain pieces and sterling silver all feature in a variety of combinations in earrings, necklaces and bracelets.

Artists have been invited to create works for the wall that are 12" X 12" or less, come see the variety of works they have created for your Christmas gift giving.

Red Chair also has its annual handmade ornaments decorating the tree for you to buy to give or enjoy on your own tree during the season.
