images that have been painted over. In their exhibition, Freeman-Martin and McMullen explore that effect, literally, by working over existing paintings: their own and each other's. McMullen proposed the exploration of the concept for their joint exhibition after reading author Lillian Hellman's autobiography, Pentimento.

Freeman-Martin, whose art layers drawings and color creating a 3D effect, responded, "Literally, that is all my work ever is..." and a theme was born. The artists exchanged existing works. The resultant new works combine paint, images, words, collage, found objects and numerous other items applied over the earlier works. For the show, McMullen traced literal stories from Ovid, T.S. Eliot, Shakespeare, Sylvia Plath and Lillian Hellman, among others. Her narrative pieces are all painted over existing paintings, including two by Freeman-Martin.

Freeman-Martin notes that working over McMullen's images "provided a wonderful opportunity to explore another imagery and narrative content. It was an exercise in trust and freedom as we discussed how to approach the emotional aspect of working over someone else's painting." The exchange also enabled her to work on a large scale (over McMullen's paintings).

The artists thus found that the previously painted work inspired new stories, images and concepts, influencing their respective styles. McMullen concludes, "Then, the viewer adds their own perspective or interpretive layer to the visual stories."

During First Friday, Noi Thai serves wine and appetizers and the Tommy Leroy Trio performs jazz. Billye Turner, art consultant (billyeturner@bendnet.com), organizes exhibitions for Franklin Crossing.

Karen Bandy Design Jeweler

25 NW Minnesota Ave., Ste. 5, 541-388-0155, www.karenbandy.com

Tucked between Thump coffee and Alleda Real Estate, Karen Bandy is Central Oregon's only national/international award-winning jewelry designer, specializing in custom design in downtown Bend since 1987. Her designs are bold, fun and always very wearable. They fit the Central Oregon lifestyle, are made for each individual personally, and are always one-of-a-kind.

Bandy is also an abstract painter who is working on a new series called The Continuum. It speaks to life slowly evolving through time, nature, birth and death, but also how we try to box it up in a neat little package, containing it, veiling truths and forgetting the lessons of the wise ones before us. The subject matter and the physical process of working with paints speaks to this idea of 'the continuum' as Bandy works both transparently and opaquely, adding layers and scraping away, creating line and texture and revealing hidden messages and truths.

Open Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday 11:30am-5pm, First Fridays and by appointment at other times.

The lobby exhibition of acrylic paintings by Megan Phallon continues through November 21, the lobby remains open during all hours.

The Oxford Hotel welcomes the Holiday Season presenting Susan Busik's vivid and polychromatic acrylic paintings opening November 23 and continuing through the New Year celebration, closing January 2. The artist will be present at the champagne opening on First Friday, December 2 from 5:30-7:30pm.

Busik's whimsical and bold paintings celebrate her Latina heritage. Her over-scale images of Madonna's, hummingbirds, forests with full moons and boldly hued dahlias, Mexico's national flower, are a tribute to the magic realism of Mexican folk art.

Her early artistic career featured abstract compositions but her focus shifted in her forties when she learned of her ancestry. Adopted as a child, the artist knew nothing of her heritage but learning of her birth mother's Mexican origins, she sought to connect to those roots with the surrealistic images and brilliant color of traditional Mexican folk art.

With her newfound passion, Busik painstakingly taught herself the complexity of the folk art's design and color. The process yielded a fearless painter, connected joyously to her past.

Red Chair Gallery

Featuring three local artists. Will Nash, of Nashwood, has the unique background of working in a variety of disciplines ranging from home-building to furniture and from architectural details to acoustic instruments. Though his interests are varied his dedication to craftsmanship and fine woodworking remain. He is influenced by Sam Maloof, George Nakashima, among others, but it is the creative work, born of necessity and the moment, that is his greatest inspiration.

Joren Traveller is inspired by the whimsy, elegance and grandeur of nature and seesaws back and forth between these to create her sculptures in bronze and ceramic well as in her drawings and paintings. Sculpture is her favorite medium and one she finds therapeutic both mentally and physically.

Janice Rhodes is an encaustic artist with a realistic approach. Because encaustics (melted beeswax, resin and pigment) have to be manipulated with a heat gun or propane torch, realism is a challenge to an artist in this medium. But Janice finds this centuries-old method of painting always rewarding with its texture, luminosity and brilliance.

Features Janice Druian. Believing that studying one or two places intently improves the artist's eye, Janice Druian has focused on two areas—Grey Butte/Smith Rock at different times of day and all seasons, and the dramatic landscape and clouds around Summer Lake, in her new series of beautiful paintings.

An award winning oil painter who is a frequent invitee to prestigious plein air events, Janice is best known for creating landscapes that capture the beauty of the isolated parts of Oregon, Arizona, Idaho, Wyoming, California and other western locations.

"Surrounded by the vast horizons, tumultuous skies and soul replenishing solitude of the remote west, I am compelled to paint." She continues to honor the long tradition of western landscape painting through her work.
